Who Are ARM Mission Weeks For?

ARM's Summer Mission Weeks are uniquely designed with your church's middle and high school students in mind, providing an engaging week focused on discipleship, spiritual growth, and serving others.

Throughout the week, students participate in hands-on home repair projects and vibrant children's ministry opportunities, putting their faith into action while building meaningful relationships with one another and the communities they serve.

Your youth will experience Christ-centered growth in many areas of their lives, including servant leadership, mission engagement, and Christian fellowship, all while discovering the joy and impact of serving others together.

Why?

Inadequate housing can lead to high utility costs, exposure to mold and pests, and serious health risks. In the South, extreme heat and cold can be silent killers, especially for the elderly and young children. At ARM, we believe every person deserves the dignity of a safe, healthy home, and we are committed to making that a reality in rural Alabama. Your youth can be a part of our mission in making homes safe and healthy while extending Jesus's love.

At ARM, we are building servant leaders who repair homes and restore communities in rural Alabama. Through hands-on service, we respond to the urgent needs of families living in homes that are not safe, warm, or dry.

Want to Serve at ARM During the Year?

Your summer means more with ARM.

We extend the love of Christ through home repair because we believe poverty housing is contrary to God's desire for His people. Repairing homes is not just about wood, nails, and insulation; it's about restoring hope, dignity, and a sense of belonging.

"Our students come back from ARM mission week on fire to serve others. A summer without ARM just seems unrealistic to us."
— Melissa, Youth Director
